FRESHMEN ELEVEN CLINCH FIRST GAME WITH 26-0 SCORE

Coach Potratz Uses Both of His First and Second Teams

MERRIMAN, GOLLNICK, McCANN STAR

Proctor Makes Vain Attempt to Score in Second Half

Presenting both the first and second teams against Proctor High School, Middlebury Frosh found little difficulty in winning the opening game of the season. Coach Potratz's charges besides running up 26 points held Proctor scoreless. The Freshmen showed a fast running backfield which seemed to gain practically at will. On the other hand Proctor found the Middlebury line for few gains and threatened only once during the game.

Starting late in the first quarter, Middlebury made four successive first downs on a series of short gains thru the Proctor line. The quarter ended with the Frosh in possession of the ball on the visitors ten-yard line. After two short gains at the beginning of the next period, Gollnick went for the first score of the game. McCann added the seventh point with a placement kick. Later in the half a blocked punt gave the Freshmen the ball on the 30 yard line. Hinman took the ball to the ten yard line for a first down. McCann then took the ball over, and again kicked the goal. Here Coach Potratz replaced his team with new men who finished the half.

At the beginning of the second half Proctor made their only threat for a score. However the blue team held on their twenty-five yard line, and a placement kick fell shore by inches. Merriman taking the ball from his twenty yard line, gained twenty-five yards on a beautiful end run, but was tackled so hard he had to leave the game. Blanchette and McCann both ripped off long gains, and Gollnick again took the ball over from the five yard line. Again in the fourth quarter Middlebury scored, McCann taking the ball over for a touchdown. With about five minutes to go, Proctor opened up with an aerial attack. However, one of these was intercepted and the Frosh took the ball. A pass gained twenty yards and placed the ball on Proctor's ten yard line. The game ended with the ball

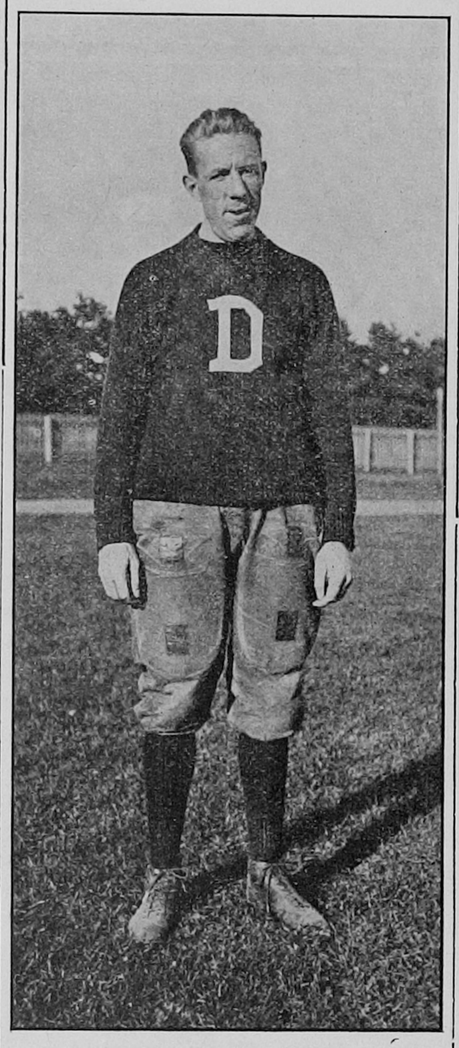
JONES, '15, WINS FLIGHT

Charles S. Jones, '15, of Garden City, L. I., Middlebury's own "Casey" Jones, was the individual hero of the first day's flying at the international races held at Dayton last week. He was declared winner of the On-to-Dayton race, first event on the program, having come from Rantoul, Ill., with greater efficiency than any of the fifty rivals he had. Jones piloted a Curtiss Oriole.

Jones also won the third event of the day, a 120-mile race over an eight-lap course, for a trophy donated by the Central Labor Union. In his Oriole he went 125.05 miles an hour.

MIRACLE MENTOR



COACH DAVID MOREY
Who Sends His Fourth Middlebury Team Against Harvard

SOPHS PILE ON TOP OF FROSH OVER HAT

5 Sophs and 3 Frosh Found Clutching Trophy When the Dust Clears

Between the halves of the Freshman game with Proctor High on Saturday the annual Frosh-Soph hat scrap was waged, and won after a hard battle by the Sophomores. Altho the Freshmen numbers were greater and somewhat heavier, the experience of the Sophs carried them to victory. The underclassmen were handicapped because the more muscular of the class who were on the football teams were not allowed to partake in the fighting. The Sophs numbered about forty to an approximate Frosh fifty.

The representatives from the two classes lined up for the tussle twenty wards apart in the center of Porter Athletic field. The hat, rumored to be the property of a Midd prof, was placed in the center. At the firing of the gun the tilt began; Lance for the Sophs was the first to seize the derby, curling up around it. Lockard, a half second too late, pounced upon him, the two being at the bottom of the close-to-a-hundred other competitors. A scrambling, wrangling, warring mass ensued. Shirts, trousers and other raiment in many cases became as nothing.

When the pile was cleared at the end of the three long minutes, three Frosh and five Sophs still clung to the headgear. Along with the hat the winners obtained a generous scattering of disimprovements to their features. Iodine paint, bandages, and darkened eyes will be a common sight on campus for a few days.

MIDDLEBURY SET TO TRIM HARVARD

Coach Morey to Spring New Kick and Offensive Attack Saturday

By LLOYD C. HARRIS

"We have been sending teams to Harvard for three years now and anyone who has ever seen those Middlebury teams play know that they do not wilt under any circumstances, no matter how great the odds. We are sending a team down to Harvard again this year that will not wilt either; in fact it is a team that will give Harvard all they can handle in every way and possibly more too." These were Coach Morey's words at the close of the practice session last night and they ably express the sentiment not only of the Coach and the team but every Middlebury student and member of the alumni body previous to the annual Stadium contest on Saturday.

This year Middlebury faces a greater task than ever before in her athletic history, the task of crossing her athletic Rubicon in the form of the mighty Harvard football machine. Last year the Blue and White accomplished the unusual feat of tying Harvard and reaching the banks of the Rubicon. Now she must cross it and emerge with a victory over the Crimson and to do this end every effort is being exerted by Coach Morey in these last few days before the classic, and if ever any group of men were putting everything they had into preparation for such an event the squad of football men under Dave Morey are.

While comparative scores are of little avail in predicting the outcome of Saturday's game, due to the fact that the season is yet young, there are some things of interest to point out. Middlebury has played two games thus far and tucked both safely under her belt without being scored on while Harvard has been initiated into but one game this year, yet neither has she been scored on.

Due to the fact that Middlebury was forced to play fifteen minute quarters against Union on Saturday the team was weakened considerably more than was expected for such long quarters are decidedly out of place in this early season game. Two of the regulars were injured also in the Union battle but both will be in the lineup against Harvard on Saturday and the team today seems to have entirely recovered from the effects of the contest last Saturday. In every way the Blue and White eleven seems to be in fine physical condition and in fine playing condition with all the rough edges of the first games worn off and is now a perfect running machine.

On the other hand reports that have come from Cambridge state the Harvard team to be in poor physical condition. A certain amount of these reports must be discredited as misleading propaganda for the benefit of opposing teams yet reports coming from more authentic sources than the news reports state that it is a fact that the Harvard eleven is upset to quite an extent physically, which of course will slow up their game on Saturday.

Another thing that brightens the outlook for Middlebury is the very noticeable fact that Harvard, in her game with Virginia on Saturday was unable to do anything until the second half

CAPT. MARSHALL KLEVENOW

SECOND RALLY PEPS UP STUDENT SPIRIT

Prof. Cady, R. R. Shepardson and Coach Brown Speak at Football Rally

The second Football Rally took place last Thursday night in the McCullough gymnasium, and from all indications was the best yet. The speakers were clear and to the point. Prof. F. W. Cady spoke in part, "Both Shakespeare and I appreciate the dramatic situation which is before us. I expect to loose at least five pounds before the game is over, and we have beaten Harvard."

R. R Shepardson, graduate manager, followed, "After the last Union game one of the coeds remarked, 'Those Green Mountain boys had on pretty blue uniforms, and the Union boys had on old union suits.' Union is going to know that we are on our way to Harvard. What we do this year at Harvard will eclipse anything that happened in former years. We will certainly show Johnnny Harvard what Middlebury men can do."

Coach Brown completed the program by saying, "In the fall our purpose is to build up school spirit and good football teams. I know that Klevenow has all kinds of confidence in his team and we are going to beat Harvard. We have a good team, a good coach, and a good captain. There is just one more thing necessary; the backing of the student body. Go to Cambridge and help the fellows win that game."

Dick Rapport composed a very apt song to the tune of "California Here we Come" which was sung in closing.

Marjorie Currier, '24, is teaching in Shrewsbury, Mass.

VARSITY SCORES WIN OVER UNION IN SECOND GAME

Garnet Held Scoreless; Blue Piles Up Sixteen Points

CAPTAIN KLEVENOW STARS IN GAME

Union Bows to Driving Offense of Marshall's Men

Playing its first scheduled game of the season the Middlebury football team scored a very decisive victory over the Union eleven on Alexander Field at Schenectady, Saturday, Oct. 4. A strong offensive of straight football and an impregnable defensive spelled defeat for Garnet jerseysd warriors.

Davis kicked off to Middlebury to open the game. Hollquist immediately punted to Stanley who was stopped in his tracks. After two unsuccessful attempts to gain Ehlert recovered a blocked kick. It was Middlebury's ball on Union's forty yord line.

Here Middlebury's driving offense began. Lobo slipped thru for nine, "Stony" made several more for first down. Papke went off tackle for ten more. Capt. Klevenow crashed thru for five, placing the ball on the Engineer's ten yard marker.

A fumble gave Union the ball. Poor punting on Davis's part gave Middlebury the ball on her opponent's 38 yard line. A pretty pass from Hollquist to Potter netted the Blue a touchdown, the first of the game. Klevenow's educated toe added the extra point.

There was no further scoring until the fourth quarter. The two middle quarters saw two very evenly matched teams receive several penalties. In the second period "Slick" Whitney ran seventy yard son an off tackle play. He was forced out on the ten yard line or another score would have resulted. During this period many substitutes were sent in.

In the fourth quarter following a kick by Hollquist Union received the ball on its thirty-five yard line. Brigham kicked to Papke, who gained ten yards. Whitney followed with five more. Here Union's line held like a stone wall. Papke was held without a gain. Middlebury again resorted to the overhead offensive, Papke tossing a pass to Whitney for a gain of fifteen yards and a touchdown. The latter failed to kick the goal.

WHO STOLE THE CLAPPER?

A new trophy hangs in the office of Dean Edgar Wiley. It is a tongue or clapper of the old chapel bell which was stolen probably as a prank by college students about thirty or forty years ago. It was found over twenty years ago in an old barn on the property of Dr S S. Eddy, of Middlebury, who has treasured it as an interesting relic of the times when the chief outdoor sport of the students at Middlebury was stealing the tongue of the old chapel bell. Dr. Eddy has presented the clapper to Dean Wiley. The clapper is in fairly good condition and weighs about twenty pounds.

"Just Before The Battle—"

We are on the verge of a great crisis. Saturday afternoon another chapter of Middlebury's football history will be written. Whether it will surpass that of last season remains to be seen; that it will equal it is already assured. Tomorrow our sturdy gridmen will entrain for Cambridge. They are going in the pink of condition and with the confidence inspired by two victories won. Every man is ready to do his best to bring victory to the Blue and White standard. The whole team is determined to fight until exhausted.

Even though the special train has been called off, 'r enthusiasm must not be dampened. Those who are to the game will cheer the boys on from the grand- Those of us who cannot attend the game can the team a rousing send off at the train. ne cheering at the train and the backing from in d will show Captain Klevenow that the student PUS is behind him and his men and that they have our teri complete confidence.

Middlebury is exceptionally fortunate in having the opportunity to meet the big Crimson machine. There aren't very many of the smaller colleges which have the honor and privilege of playing Harvard. When our handful of gridiron warriors went down last year no one had any idea that they would withstand the attack. They amazed the collegiate sporting world by their great fight against what seemed overwhelming odds. Each time the Black Panther has entered the arena it has made itself known as a worthy opponent which could be depended upon to furish a tussle. There are several ways of looking at the game and attempting to predict the result. Just look for example at the scores in the past three years: 20-0; 16-0; 6-6. If one can judge from the way in which the score has been cut down each time we have played Harvard, then one can predict that we are due for a victory this year. Many, however, look upon it as a second Center-Harvard affair. They predict that we are in for a terrible trouncing. But whatever the score we know that Middlebury's honor will be upheld and if fate has decided that we shall not taste victory, the cup of defeat will be sweetened by the knowledge that our team lost while fighting to the last inch, to the last blast of the referee's whistle.

We are out to get John Harvard this year and John Harvard is just as determined to keep us in what he considers our proper place. The newspapers will be full of stories about the little blue team—in blue jerseys but not blue spirits—and every one will be watching to see what can come out of the Vermont hills. They have dubbed us "Little Middlebury" but we are going to make them say after the conflict: "Little—but, oh my!"

Let's go, Middlebury!

Poor Butterfly

Some of us have noticed on beautiful sunny afternoons various members of our college out in the fields, making muscular sweeps into the air chasing after butterflies. To a few of the thoughtful ones it has seemed that there is a great deal of this going on here, as well as in other institutions, which is not made legitimate by any registered course. We are always chasing something elusive, perhaps pleasure, perhaps a way to get through with as little energy and brain power expended as possible, and are so occupied with this game that we seldom have time to look ourselves in the eyes and discover just what we are doing anyway. There are so many types of butterflies. Are we wasting our skill on something of no value?

A great many of us are sent to college at the cost of sacrifices and deprivation on the part of our families. Whether that be the case or not, it inevitably is an effort and a matter of pride and thought when a son or daughter is sent away to college. The expense is certainly noticed, and we are missed in many ways. When we got here what happened? In many instances, we chase butterflies for four years. We express standard thoughts turned out from the Great American collegiate factory, we wear collegiate sweaters and ties, we use collegiate slang, and returning home on the train we lean back peacefully with the assurance that our fellow passengers have discovered that we are collegiate people. Once home, our families discover that we have learned to speak in a jargon unintelligible to anyone but our own immediate circle, to inhale gracefully, and above all to dress.

In short, we have a wonderful time. A wonderful time has its place in the life of youth, but certainly not to the extent that we should feel brains a disgrace, and something to obe hidden from view, certainly not at the price of all individuality. A wonderful time can be procured at home, or in any city with much less expense and trouble than by staying in college four years for the purpose of being "smooth" and socially eligible. That sort of superficial and inmature gloss will not be an "open sesame" in the world of cultured, educated people. As in warm weather we have to discard an overcoat, so this outer coating will be removed or cracked, by circumstances sooner later.

Then will not be revealed what species of butterflies we have spent our time chasing?

The Other Fellow's Job

"O what a dumb bell trick, now if I had done it" and with this prologue an often heard speech is well under way, in which fault finding based on little information is mingled in about equal quantity with self conceit based on less. It is a favorite indoor sport with us all to pick flaws in the other follow's work.

Here in college if a play goes wrong on the gridiron the fellow in the stands who was never in the line in his life feels perfectly competent to give an expert criticism of the tactics employed, and forgets the many successful plays and the hours of work they represented. If some scene fails in a dramatic performance, the performance, the persons who have never experienced the sensations of those behind the footlights promptly offer their criticism with all the poise of a Joseph Jefferson or a Barrymore. If the college newspaper slips up on a story, or fails to give someone the space that his feeling of self importance demands, there is no one so quick to catch it up as he who has never endured the nervous strain called forth by the combination of one hour to press time and five columns yet to go.

This type of criticism which is usually thoughtless, indicates a real flaw of character that every one should strive to overcome. We need to acquire the ability to put ourselves in the other fellow's place. We need to realize that that which is of supreme importance to us as an individual can be only a small part of a task to him. We must remember that a result in any field of effort presupposes hours of previous labor and that no one can understand the other man's game as he does. What we need is patience, forebearance and charity—and the last most of all.

H. W. C.

Coinciding with the article printed in our columns this week which calls attention to the growth of the college, we notice an item appearing in a recent issue of the Middlebury Register in its column entitled "35 Years Ago," which says:

"The fall term of college began yesterday. The freshmen then on the grounds numbered 19, and there are more coming. Of those already here, three are ladies.—Local."

What The Press Says

From the Harvard Crimson

Middlebury showed on Saturday that Harvard will have trouble this week in proving that last year's six to six game was an accident. Downing Union 16 to 0, the Vermont college eleven showed an evenly balanced attack with speed still the predominant factor.

From the New York World

There will be a general turning of Big Three interests to the game at the Harvard Stadium. Harvard's opponents, Middlebury, is the little but lusty eleven which held the Crimson to a 6 to 6 tie last year. Dave Morey, the Middlebury coach and former backfield star, has been trotting a bright little team into Cambridge for the past three years—a team that jump shifted its way to a very respectable showing on each occasion, and which last year would have gained a much coveted victory but for a misjudgment on the part of the Middlebury quarterback. His team this year appears to possess strength equal to that of last season and the "Lick Harvard" cry has been dinned into its collective ears for the past month.

From the Boston Post

Fired by thoughts of a victory last year in the Harvard Stadium the little Middlebury team faces the Crimson with a team of veterans.

From the Rutland Herald

From all appearances Harvard will have a problem on its hands Saturday when it tackles the scrappy eleven from Middlebury. If Middlebury will only open up and throw passes, run the ends, and never mind the line plays, the game will be worth the trip from Middlebury, Vt., to Cambridge, Mass.

DR. TWEEDY PLEADS FOR LESS JAZZ

Yale Divinity Prof's. Stirring Sermon Urges Temperate Living

"Jazz, art and literature if you must but don't jazz life." This was the plea of Dr. Henry H. Tweedy in his sermon of Sunday evening. He protested against the modern tendency to do away with old customs, old forms, old masters, and to replace them by ones that are, to be sure, very new but of doubtful worth. Everything is jazzed—morals, customs, music, painting, literature, life. We modernists turn from the works of Reynolds and Raphael to the modern Cubists, whose productions are merely a conglomeration of physical contortions. We prefer the jazz of Berlin to the melodies of Mozart. The literature of the past becomes boresome; we prefer a modern novel of loose morality. The Puritanical doctrines of our forebearers? We laugh—for we have a "new" code, all our own which fits with "modern" times. Immortality? The Bible? All a myth we say; a pretty story concocted by the race when it was in it childhood.

Dr Tweedy's message was this: There may be a good jazz and bad jazz, expression of youth, sensualism. If old customs and morals do not seem to satisfy do not tear them down unless better and more beautiful ones can be brought to take their place. Although Christ himself changed many things He did so for the purpose of introducing greater things, and modern things. He was not destructive—He was constructive. And modern anarchists, such as have been spoken of above, seek to tear down the old system of things but do not offer in its place a better or stronger system. Therefore, pattern your life after Him whose life is recognized, even by these very anarchists, to be the greatest one ever lived, and do not be carried away by the mob merely for the sake of newness and a barbaric desire for wild eccentric notes in life.

Club Leaders Chosen

On Wednesday evening, October 2, a meeting of the French Club was held at the Maison Francaise, Frank K. Harrington, '26, was elected president to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Andre Ladue. Mr. Harrington is a Kappa Delta Rho. Ruth Baldwin '25, was chosen vice president and Charlote Raymond retained her office of secretary and treasurer. Both Miss Baldwin and Miss Raymond are members of the Delta Omega Delta sorority. A program committee was also elected which is composed of one delegate from each class. Helen Miller will represent the class of '25, Luther Kelly, '26, Henry Schuettauff, '27, and Gladys Mohan, '28. It was decided that there would be a meeting regularly once a month instead of every two weeks as formerly.

Professor Hardre fully explained the purpose of the club and urged everyone interested in French to join.

NEW MARK REACHED IN COLLEGE GROWTH

Seating Capacity Of Chapel Severely Taxed; Front Pews Now Occupied.

A new mark in the growth of Middlebury College has been reached at the close of registration for the year 1924-1925. Official figures just released from the office of the registrar show that the enrollment in the men's college has passed the 300 mark for the first time, there now being 301 men enrolled. This number, together with 258 in the women's college, the same total as last year, brings the grand total of registration at Middlebury to 559, a new record.

The freshmen class of 108 men, include 99 who are newcomers at Middlebury. Although this is not the largest class on record, it is considerably in excess of the number of new arrivals last year. The women have 80 in the freshman class, the largest number ever admitted to the college.

Complete registration figures by classes are as follows: Men's college, graduate students 2, seniors 58, juniors 66, sophomores 67, freshmen 108. Women's college, graduate students 5, seniors 54, juniors 59, sophomores 60, freshmen 80.

The seating capacity in the Mead Chapel is severely taxed as a result of the large enrollment. The seats on the men's side of the chapel are completely full and a few freshmen are being forced to sit on extra chairs at the rear.

Tentative Schedule Drawn For 4th Vocational Series

A tentative schedule for the fourth annual series of vocational lectures was drawn up at a metting of the Undergradute Committee on Vocational Lectures at the home of Dean Wiley last Wednesday evening.

The undergraduate committee consists of F. B. Rich, G. T. Mullen, W. E. Long, D. Frederickson, K. Anderson, J. A Clark, C. Fussel, W. Brookins, W Purdy, H. Buckley, W. Browne, F. Harrington ,H. Frank, L. W. Robinson, E. Smith, D. S Hawthorne, and H. W. Cutler.

Dean Wiley left for Boston today to interview several of the experts on the various professions and industries whom the committee desires to secure for the lecture series.

The calibre of the men on this year's list of tentative speakers is fully as impressive as last year's when some of the most prominent men in the country, such as George H. Doran, head of the Doran Publishing Co., Dean Roscoe Pound, of Harvard, and Robert L. O'Brien ,editor of the Boston Herald, spoke on the particular professions they represent. Within a week or two the definite schedule of speakers will be announced.

BONNEY TO LEAD GLEE CLUB AGAIN

May Enter Intercollegiate Contest This Year; Other Trips to be Arranged

Over half of those who qualified at the glee club tryouts held in the Woman's Club room last Friday are either freshmen or upper classmen who were trying out for the first time. The club will be under the management of Professor Luther Bonney and will try to repeat the triumphs of last year.

Although no definite schedule has been formed as yet, it is expected that a number of interesting trips will be arranged. The engagements will to some degree depend upon how the club begins to shape up in its rehearsals. If the prospects seem promising enough the club will enter the intercollegiate glee club contest at which the club made its debut last year, and finished ahead of Wesleyan, Princeton, University of Pennsylvania, and Amherst.

While the first tenor department lost many of its best voices through graduation, Professor Bonney believes that the freshmen addition will offset the losses. He considers the prospects bright for the coming season.

The list of those who qualified is as follows: First Tenors, Perrin, Wright, Mullen, L. E. Bacon, Melvin Livingston, Knowles, Russell Pratt, Mangan, Furbush, Caruso, and F. Smith; Secon Tenors, Herzig, E. Crane, Reigelman, R. Eastman, Jack Morris, Wilson, Keene, George Thompson, Pfleuger, and Stout; First Basses, Herrington, Gruggel, Happ, Heylman, Jack Lee, Prata, Carboy, Arthur Yeaw, Lockwood, Earl Davis, E. Gee, John Connelly; Second Basses, Carlson, Hardy, W. Thompson, Shaw, Van Hoven, R. Allen, Brokenshire, Newcomb, Cooley, McCutcheon, C. Matthews, MacDonald, Frederickson and Huntington.

Others who wish to compete for positions in the glee club will be given an opportunity immediately before the rehearsals which are held every Friday evening in the Postoffice building.

A Progressive Liberal Club

A club house where "members may drop in at any time during the day for tea or coffee or for just a talk and a rest" is being planned by the Round Table, the undergraduate discussion club at Dartmouth.

Plans for an outing club "where not only members of the Round Table but also those other men who may be interested in the discusion of various topics and problems of interest to undergraduates" are also being considered.

Concerning College Scabs

After a summer's work in the shops and mills the Rochester Industrial Group composed of nine colege students held a conference to discuss their experiences. They passed a resolution, a startling one.

"Be it resolved that we, the members of the Rochester Industrial Service Group of 1924 hereby openly sympathize with the worker in his struggle for the betterment of labor, affirm our belief in the inalienable right of the worker to strike, and denounce the acts of college men who have in the past been instrumental in breaking strikes and condemn strikebreaking as an utter disregard of the workers' necessary struggle for a decent livelihood."

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS GAIN FULL STRIDE

Freshmen Offered Tennis, Horseback Riding or Hockey This Fall

Women's athletics have been in full swing for nearly two weeks now. The freshmen women are allowed their choice of horseback riding, tennis or hockey during the fall months.

Horseback riding is an innovation at Middlebury and many of the women are taking advantage of the opportunity to learn. Classes have been arranged and on Friday and Saturday nights of last week several of them held bacon bats. They rode out and after an enjoyable meal returned to the campus by eight o'clock. Instruction in this course is given by Mr. Durkee and Hazel Abbott.

Tennis instruction has been given by Miss Rosevear. A number of women are busily engaged in perfecting their strokes. Besides the regular classes, a strokes. Besides the reguar classes, a singles tournament is being conducted which is not quite completed. The freshmen class is the only one whose contestants have completed their matches. Florence Lockerby is the winner.

Hockey practice commenced enthusistically among all the women. The freshmen turned out to learn the rudiments of the game and the upperclasswomen to practice for their class teams. Miss Young has been coaching the class squads on every fair day.

Seven hundred to 800 patents are granted weekly by the patent office in Washington.

BROWN'S PRODIGIES OFF FOR HARVARD

Team Training Hard; Suffers Set Back in Loss of Fish '26

Coach Brown's prodigies will leave Middlebury for Cambridge tomorrow to run the Harvard men Friday.

At present the course which will be run is not definitely known, but in previous years the team ran over the difficult Belmont Course. It is expected that seven men will comprise the team, the first seven to finish in the trials of last Thursday. They are: L. Kelly, '26, L. Robinson, '26, T. Carlson, '26, E Gollnick ,'25, C. Hamlin, '25, W. Brookins, '26, and R. Stoughton, '27.

The Panther's distance men have been training long and hard for the six mile marathon to be run at Cambridge, with the idea of avenging last year's score. Trials for the team were held last Thursday. The leaders ran the course in a little over the record, the time being 34:19. The record set last year by Captain Cook, '24, was 34:1½. The men finished in the order given above with one exception. W. Donald, '28, finished hand in hand with Kelly for first place, the two having held the lead around the entire course.

The team suffered a severe setback when it lost Captain Fish, '26, one of the most valuable men. He left college a little over a week ago to accept a position. Members of the freshman class are not allowed to compete even in minor sports this year as a result of the First Semester Rule, thereby limiting the team to members of the three upper classes oonly.

and then her 14 points came, not as a result of a superior team, but more as a result of breaks coming her way at needed times. In every quarter the Crimson offense and defense was ragged and irregular which may count in favor of Middlebury this week-end, especially since the Crimson forward line is inexperienced and ragged.

Middlebury will have the advantage of taking a team with almost the same personnel that held Harvard last year plus a year's experience. However, it will be an old team with new ideas and new playing strategy and tactics as Coach Morey has developed an entirely new system of play to be sprung on the Crimson machine Saturday. One of the features of this attack will be a kick, entirely new to football, yet one that is wholly within the rules of the game. It will be used from within the 45-yard line and will be engineered by Klevenow whose toe was a mighty factor in tying Harvard last year.

The second feature will be a new offensive attack as Harvard has acquainted herself fairly well with the Mid dlebury attack of previous years and Coach Morey has worked out a different puzzle for them to solve this year and it is expected that the Harvard team will return the favor with a new defense system.

Thus Middlebury leaves tomorrow for Boston in excellent physical condition ,with an entirely new system of play prepared especially for Harvard, with the utmost confidence that they can win and with a student body backing them to the limit and knowing that a victory over Harvard will at last be achieved on Saturday.

Tribunal Proposed to Aid Rule Enforcement

W. E. Long, '25, was elected manager of winter sports for the coming winter at a meeting of the Undergraduate Association in the gymnasium last night.

At the same meeting favorable action was taken on a recommendation of the Student Council for an alteration of the by-laws of the council to provide for the formation of a tribunal to facilitate enforcement of college traditions by the freshmen class. Final action upon this recommendation will be taken at the next regular meeting of the Undergraduate Association. Copies of the recommendation will be posted on bulletin boards this week for the more detailed information of the student body.

Y. W. C. A. Holds Its First Fall Meeting

The first Y .W. C. A. meeting of the year was held in the Music Studio last Wednesday evening, with a larger attendance than the building could conveniently accomodate.

The President, Katherine Mix, '25, presided and the subject for the evening was "The Purpose of Y. W." which she explained to be three-fold, the development of Body, Mind and Spirit. Each of the three phases was discussed at length, Lucia Goldthorpe, '25, speaking of the bodily development, Helen Woodworth, '26, of that of the mind, and Florence Smith, '26, of the spirit.

The music was furnished by a trio consisting of Pauline Cross, '27, violin, Margery Cross, 28, 'cello, and Madolyn Derrick, '27, at the piano.

The main purpose of the meeting was ing on the year's program, the meaning to explain to the freshmen, before strat- and purpose of the Y .W. C. A. as a National Organization and what it means to Middlebury women.

K. D .R.'s Hold Party

Twenty couples attended the house party Saturday night at the Kappa Delta Rho House in South Street. Prof. and Mrs. L. I. Bonney and Mrs. Cutting acted as chaperones. Jack Conley, '26, played the piano, and Dick Stout, '28, the violin.

Tennis Tournament Reaches Semi-Finals

The college championship tennis tournament has reached the semi-final stages and during the course of its progress has uncovered much promising material for the team.

In the senior class tournament Rich, Gollnick and Curtis have reached the semi-finals. "Beac" Rich won the tennis tournament last year and is an odds-on favorite to repeat this year.

In the junior class Twitchell, Hade and Corporon have reached the semi-finals. Wolfskehl has reached the finals in the sophomore class and will play the winner of the Hayward-Hazeltine match for the championship of the class. In the Freshman class Hindes, Kammerer, and Dunz have fought their way into the semi-finals. The semi-finals and finals in the class contests will be played before October 14.
